Metaphorical lines about life

I have accumulated a collection of life metaphors. Some were personally created by me, and some that I got from the net and other sources. The comparisons of life to things and objects are very interesting to notice and if you have other ideas please to add one. Thanks. Have fun reading! Life is like a seed. He will never grow if not planted and fed. Life is like a river. With all its rapid curves and falls, you have to follow the right way otherwise you lost it to the sea. Life is like a box of chocolates. You will never know what you're going to get.Life is like a bagel. It's delicious when it's fresh and warm, but often it's hard. The hole is the center is its great mystery, yet it would not be a bagel without it. Life is like eating grapefruit. First you have to break through the skin; Then it takes a couple of bites to get used to taste, and just as you start enjoying you, it splashes in the eye. Life is like a banana. The green begins and becomes soft and soft with the age. Some people want to be one of the bunches while others want to be the best banana. You have to take care of not slipping on exteriors. And finally, you have to tick the external coating to get to the meat. Life is like cooking. Everything depends on what is added and how it mixes. Sometimes you follow the recipe and other times, you're creative.life is like a puzzle, but you don't have the photo on the front of the box to know what should appear. Sometimes, you're not even sure if you have all the pieces. Life is like a labyrinth in which you try to avoid exit. Life is how to drive an elevator. It has a lot of up and downs and someone always pushes the buttons. Sometimes you get the tree, but what the annoys you like jerks.life is like a room full of open doors that close as you get older. Life is like a dog puppy always looking for a road full of hydrants. A poker game. He takes care of you or occupied. Includes skill and luck. Bet, check, bluffs and get up. Learn from those with whom you play. Sometimes you win with a couple or lose with a complete home. But whatever happens, it's better to keep mixing along. Life is like a novel. You are the author and every day is a new page.Life is like photography. We develop from negative. Life is like money. You can spend it in any way you want, but you spend only once. Life is like an onion. You're fading the layer after the layer and sometimes cry. Life is like a whisper. If you only try and stop stopping planting, you suddenly realize that it's there. Life is like a pencil. You can be sharp, you can correct errors, and you can leave a mark. The latter two are not really metaphors, but a love of Kinda that includes them in the list. I thought I'm not anywhere to publish them but here. I'm just spurn ideas of the moment ... life is crazy, but only for those who have no plans for this. Life is unfair if you don't have wisdom to understand it. Click here for more life metaphors .... metaphors, analogies, idioms and similar me can help us communicate better, think about things through and reflect on our life experiences. But they can also help us think about us through pain, anxiety and pain. Memetafore for life offer us all this. They offer us the possibility of coming in terms with our death, following and remember those who have recently been dead, and reflect on how to live as appreciatable life possible. You may also notice that the metaphors of life are the basis of many of the books we read and films that we look. From arrival books like Harry Potter to life stories like forest gump, life lessons are fundamental for stories we tell each other. This article has some of the most relevant metaphors, similar, idioms and analogies for Life that help us with ways to try big questions like "life is worth it? À ê â,~" and "What does it mean to live a good life? À ê,~> This article comes from our AZ series on metaforsI. A chocolate box wanted to start with my favorite (from (from Gump!): À ê ~Mama mom has always said that life is like a box of chocolates. You never know what you will be! À ê,~ "While the way in which the Gump forest explained the explained a similarity (which the use of the term À ê â,~ ~ LikeIike â,~ â " ê is there inside) It could easily transform it into a metaphor: À ê â,~ "Life is a box of chocolates." This metaphor moves across the whole Gump movie forest. Please emphasize how so much from our hands in life. Sometimes good things happen, sometimes bad things happen. It's a mixed bag! (This is another old metaphor there). So, Gump concerns life to those boxes of chocolates where it is a mix of different chocolates in the box. Put your hand and À ê â,~ "Well - you could take one that you like or you could have one you're not so passionate. But, just like life, not just you don't know what coming arriving behind the corner.2 . An empty canvas that says that À ê â,~ À "Life is a blank canvas" refers to the idea you can do everything you want with your life. You can paint. This said is closely linked to the philosophies of life that focus on freedom of choice. It is also designed to be incredibly enhanced and encourage people to be creative in their life.3. A story the idea that life is a story could also be summed up as À ê â,~ À "Life is a novel", where you are the author. This metaphor is very similar to the metaphor mentioned above À ê À , ~ â "canvasÀ ê â,~ â" ê, except that this could be your literary version of that artistic metaphor! It is another enhanced metaphor because it shows you that you can choose what you want to do with your life À ê â,~ "Write your story! 4. A marathon, not a sprintif, we are lucky, we live for many decades. So we have to think of long term. We are a marathon "rather than sprinting, because it is a long journey in which we stayed. This metaphor reminds us of slowing down and doing a little job every day. We can't burn ourselves too much, and when we hit the jokes D 'Arresto, we must remember that there are still a long way to go, so don't donate.5. A circlethe is À ê â,~ À "Circle of Lifeâ, â " ê refers to the idea that we all have the possibility of going through phases From birth to death. But, reminds us that we do to die at the end. And when we die, we do aside to allow others to have life. This metaphor is perhaps better known by the film The Lion King where Mufasa says to Simba that all Life is based each other. We eat the antelope, but when we die we turn to the grass, and the antelope eats the grass to complete the circle.6. A garden gardenthe metaphor is located as it is The gardener that the garden. You must remember to tend to your gi Ardino (your life), urchin it and make sure you get a lot of sun and water. This is a highly figurative on- we are not talking about the sun, but perhaps the reference here is the importance of smiling and laughing. Similarly, water could be the emotional sustenance we need for all our lives.7. A gamet considers life as a game is to think about it as a puzzle to solve. We need to think ahead and move now that they will help us in the future. It could be the monopoly game, for example, where we have to decide what to buy and when to buy it. But just like a board game, there is an element of luck in our lives. Sometimes a roll of dice is good for us and for others we land in trouble .8. An onion is À ê â,~ ~ "to our life. When someone meets us, clearly doesn't know everything about us. But as we know someone, we'll take out the layers of the onions and we know each other better and better. Under a layer we could know Spirituality. Under another, we will learn about our unique idiosyncrasies. This metaphor reminds us of time to get to know each other.9. A playshakespeare stage has That life is a theater and all of us are the actors: "" The whole world is a stage, and all men and women simply players: they have their exits and their revenues; And a man in time of him plays many parts. This is a very complex quote with many movement movements At the nucleus here is the idea that we all have our role to play in the history of our life, but also that we do not necessarily expect the central characters of the world. The point we will play all many parts also emphasize the complexity of life. We could be the hero in our history and the villain in another ". A gift could be my favorite metaphor for life. It reminds us that we are blessed to have the possibility of living in this world. We need to love every moment. I often hear this metaphor when a new child is born, where we consider the child to be a gift for the world. Without new life, we will probably all be a bit worried and anguished! So, the young lives are always a gift. But even the grandparents , parents, brothers and sisters.11. A mountain scale the mountain metaphor reters back to this idea that life is a marathon. A mountain seems an insurmountable climb, but if we take it a step at a time We can grind it. So once we are at the top, we will be at the top, we will be able to look at our beautiful point of view and reflect on our incredible realizations. For more information, see our art icle on mountain metaphors.12. At cliontometimes, you feel people while they age saying: À ê À <I am beyond the hill." Of course, they didn't literally climb a hill, but they say they completed the part of their life where they grow, they become stronger and improving. Now, in the second half of life, these people feel as if they were back downhill. This could be related to the cognitive decline, or could also refer to the fact that they did all the hard work and now they can enjoy their old age - they are no longer difficult to climb, but it costs down. 13. Two roads diverged in a yellow wooden line from a poem by Robert Frost asks you to examine your life and how to live it. The last three lines read: Two roads diverged in a wood, and I took the less traveled by, and this did all the difference. The premise of this poem is that you have chosen in your life, especially at Pivotal moments. You can choose to go to one direction or another. And it's your job as an author of your life to choose the best route for you. But there's another message here. The frost is saying that you should be in bold to live a unique life, and while it might be difficult to follow the paths that are less certain, it can also be rewarding .14. A Journey the poem above also tells us something else: life is a journey, and you are the traveler. You can imagine you walk through different landscapes. Years who are difficult could be equitable to walk through the dessert. But sometimes you will meet an oasis or a beautiful point of view, which are the reasons why we go in the year and year. À ê â,~ À "LIFE is a masterpiece is a masterpiece, À,~ we refer to how remarkable life is. It is full of beautiful moments. And when we go for a walk, we see life in the ponds and in the trees and we can stop for a moment to the wonder of the Capotave of God. Course, this is a popular metaphor among religious people, because they see everything around them as A masterpiece painted by God.16. A comedy and a tragedyhorace walpole À ê â,~ " À British politician and writer À ê â,~" once written. "Life is a comedy for those who think and a tragedy for those who feel." This Metaphor highlights how life can cause existential Angst if we leave it. But we can also choose to laugh of the futility of life, and the certainty of death. You know the metaphorical version of the saying - you can laugh or cry in something that is about to end up sadly, but Also that you can't do anything.> Also read: metaphors for the Choose your adventure adventure I love the sense of empowerment of this metaphor. As a child I used to read goose bumps. At the end of each chapter, you have a choice of which the chapter read the next so you can choose how your story ends. Life in many ways is an adventure book. Every hour and e You get a new path to walk down and you can choose which path more exciting to you! 18. A building is built for YouSelfyou can imagine you build your life a brick at a time. Every day, you wake up and place more bricks of the temple is called your À ê LifeÀ ê ~ma Donate t forget step back and look at the general picture of what youÀ ê king and construction. Set it to solid foundations, and create a structure that can be proud. You also want to make sure that wonÀ ê t collapse on itself, so make the right decisions every day! 19. At Templethis metaphor builds on Last.The idea that your life is a temple reminds you that you are creating something that is sacred. When you build your building (see above the metaphor), YouÀ ê is not just building any building. You are building something valuable thatÀ ê s and needs protection. YouÀ ê King and the construction of a temple alone for your Spirit.20. A rollercoasterthe RollerCoaster metaphor is one of the most famous for many different situations. It refers to the idea that something is full of high, low and fits well --the-loops.Life in this metaphor. Life has twists, skyscrapers and great falls. It can be exciting but also scary. And everything can be done sometimes it's hanging for the race! 21. A lotteryThe idea that life is a lottery highlights the luck that goes into our existence. Sometimes we feel like we have no control over what happens to us. Some people are born in wealth, others in poverty. Some diseases seem to target for one reason or another, while others get long years of Health.22. A series of Lessonsevery day you learn something new. And if you look at life this way, no matter what a good or bad thing happens À ê you can reflect and take as an important lesson for your life. If you see everything that happens as a lesson, you become a very wise person for the moment youÀ ê king Older.23. A battlote idea that life is a battle highlights the difficulties we have to face. We donÀ ê t get through life without scars and bruised along the way. And its s our work for a firm fight on! This is a contradictory way to look at life, and highlights the negative aspects. But I think it might be useful when to commiserate with others about how difficult life is, especially during times.24 rough. A mazeimage be in the middle of a labyrinth. You know your way out, or where you are direct. YouÀ ê re making most of things, but you never have a birdÀ ê s eye of how things go and which angles will bring to where.life is like this. You can do your best to surf, but it is difficult to plan too far in the future, because you donate t have a birdÀ ê s eye of whatÀ ê s that goes to be around the next corner.25. LemonstHereÀ ê knows by saying: À, when life gives you lemons, make lemonade.À ê gives me t that this is a nice metaphor, but it is certainly an interesting figure of the speech so I thought Ia d share her here, too! This says that youÀ ê is going to get a lot of things in life that seem sour and sadden. But it's your job to do what to do with what you ê VE got it. So do something you like about any life than your hands! (I think here YouÀ ê R! Personificating a life so could be a case of personification, rather than the metaphor) .ConclusionThere are tons and tons of metaphors for life in our language. Above are just an example of some of the most common ones that can meet. These metaphors can help explain your feelings about life, find ways to explain the characters in biographies, or even just reflect on how to think of life.bibliography [1] The-Road-not-taken [2] 3] E-All-The-Men-Andia But Scorpio, I like outdoor life, and IÀ ve articles written in some important online publications like Medium and The Weekly. My favorite metaphor? All That ê s has to do with baseball. IÀ M fascinated by the fact The language has the braided baseball all through it. Read more about me here. here.
