Elyn lived in China with his family for 30 years, absorbing history and culture, having fun and making many friends. This photo collage showcases Various common elements of Chinese garden design.Cairitriana Nicholson, CC-BY-SA 2.0, via flickrwhat defines The style of a Chinese garden? This photo collage breaks many of the elements of a Chinese garden. Although not all the classic Chinese gardens have these elements, they are all part of what distinguishes the Chinese garden design: Moon gates and the windows specially carved fascinating stones (often from Lake Tai) a pond or a lake (usually with carp golden) Rocky gardens (sometimes organized as a labyrinth) rooms with different functions (libraries, salt for music reproduction, salt for the study of religion, such as taoism or Buddhism, and my favorite: secret caves for special meetings) Pavilions (to enjoy nature) Pagode (and in other places to drink the tea in all weather conditions) Maybe you will be lucky enough to visit China a day and walk through these gardens in person. Meanwhile, I hope you like these Chinese garden photos that I have taken over the last 30 years and learn a little philosophy and the structure of the gardens them.Chinese Draw and hundreds of years of inspiration for their designs.Authorhundredards of years Gardening Chinese History Garden is full of symbolism and wants to be a representation of the universe. At the same time, there is a miniature presentation of vast natural landscapes, in all their glory, yet so small that can be inserted into a small earth pocket as a part of the vast complex the house of an extended Chinese family. It is the setting for large family meetings, especially during the holidays: the place where people went for contemplation; where scholars, poets and government officials met to discuss important topics; And a place of peace and Relaxation.it is difficult to imagine until you've been a few. If you don't look carefully, you might think that all Chinese gardens are similar, with the same ideas: central pond, rock poles, corridors, lattice windows, old trees, and many buildings. But there is a lot of expression within the "rules" themselves. Every garden has its pleasant aspects that people from all over the world appreciate for this day.They to say it takes 300 years to cultivate a garden. Think that.Lakes and ponds are important features in almost every Chinese Garden.Authdyrb critical role of a body or Watera Lakea pond a lake or ponda is fundamental for a Chinese garden. It is practical and an important philosophical statement practical reasons are that it provides moisture and a cooling oasis in the center, as well as water for plants and fish.it is also there for philosophical reasons. Water is Yin in Taoist theory, the soft, yield. Lake Tai stones on the edge of the pond are Yang, the solid, inflexible. Together there is everything, the yin yang who describes all my life, which balances your energy qi, and dA vitality to all those who visit the garden water. The hotel also provides beautiful reflections, can be a mirror for the Beautiful anxious women to have a look at what their looks look, can be used in the event of a fire, and can also be used for water the trees and plants throughout the garden. In the first days of the creation of gardens , the name of this process has been "cultivating a pond," instead of "creating a garden." This also gives us a certain understanding as it is important to a pond is that of a Chinese Garden.Lake Tai Rocks stratified in a wonderful arrangement.The philosophy at the base of Lake Tai Stoneseveryone likes strange and unusual things. Stones from Lake Tai are very unusual and are appreciated in China for their holes corners and cracks. The holes occur when the limestone at the base of Lake Tai is eroded at certain points, creation of holes. It takes thousands of years, and that it is another interesting piece of these rocks.Stones are difficult and do good accompaniments for the freshwater water in the center of the garden. In in It is the soft flowing water of Lake Tai which makes the limestone holes and creates these surprising stones. They are often stacked in stone mountains, many times in layers, so as to obtain the illusion that is in the mountains, looking at the steep rocks stratified in the Chinese people loves distance. Many strange stones, and they derive great joy in the Imagine what the stones could portray. A chicken, a layer of clouds, mountains, a turtle, two birds talking? The rocks have a sort of freedom that is delightful.a young child watches fascinated while golden carp swim around, with lightning light in the importance of the deep Water.The of Golden Carpcarp are loved. Who not enjoy fish feeding? Many Chinese gardens have golden carp in the central pond. Carp can also be food for the family. In some gardens, there are special pavilions with the exact purpose of watching the fish.Latch adds an additional touch of beauty to Windows.Windows in view windows in view of the view. This is a common feature of a Chinese garden. If you look through the frame of a door, you can find a window just inside the door, which looks through in a garden, offering a view of layers on layers of Scenery.it is a reminder of how complex and stratified ours ours Screw are, and also as complex our universe is. In any case, make sure you think about layers and appreciate them.Many of the doors have wonderful shapes, including: moons, pumpkins, and all sorts of openings.Gourd in the shape of doors Meanfy Long Lifewhoever thought to make a door in the shape of one pumpkin? It's not as strange as you might think. Pumpkin is a symbol of long life. Surely this door was created when someone reached late age, and this symbolic form was created instead of a regular shape. Although no one has done at 80, pumpkins could be seen as a desire that someone would have lived a long life, a blessing every time he walks through the door. Nice idea! Why is the pumpkin a symbol of long life? Because the long life god, who has a fishing head, brings a pumpkin on a stick above his shoulder that has the "elbir of long life" in it. This comes from one of the many stories of China for thousands of years ago.Here you can see the gardens at the back to the master of garden networks in Suzhou. Cultivate Giardini for Futures in Giardino Comea is an exercise of "cultivating temperament." It takes time to find the right parts.If you have a wall unit written above a door, you need the right person to calligraphy, you hopefully an emperor. And you have to wait until the right time and the right connections to ask for it. It is also necessary to wait for the plants for growth. Good garden is not something that happens during the night, but mature and deepens its beauty as the years. When you make a garden, I'm not just doing for now, but is anticipating the future and imagine generations to how. In a Chinese garden, you also expect to build on what was there before you. Sometimes new ideas are born. If it is well received by people, it suddenly finds themselves in many local gardens. This is not a lot of copying as it is improving.This image is a segment of the painting "Evening banquet at the Peach and Pear Blossom Garden" by Leng Mei from the National Palace Museum, Taipei.Public DomainChinese Gardens have long been the environments you know For Coming Togetherfor celebrations: many Chinese celebrations took place in the garden. Extended family, friends and important people all may have been invited to be part of the celebrations. There would be tables full of guest food and offers in honor of the moon. Everyone would sing songs, writing poems, drinking wine, eating mooncakes full of of lotus seed paste, and have a good time to be with each other. For romanticism: the gardens were also places where lovers could meet. In the 1980s and 90s, gardens like the "Garden Couples" were still a meeting point for lovers. If a poke your head around every corner, you could find couples enjoying enjoying Often kisses. Chinese houses are very crowded, often with grandparents who share space. Without room for yours, what would you do if I had a boyfriend or a girl? Several hundred years ago were the same lovers who often found a private point where they could meet in the garden for a quick talk and perhaps one smooch. For contemplation: The gardens were also a place where people have trained their hearts and spent time in contemplation. People still do it in the gardens very naturally. For pleasure: gardens have been made to taste. They were planned so that no matter where you looked at, there was a new view and some new pleasure for your eyes. The gardens were (and are) common places for scholars to collect.Authorgardens were collecting places for Scholarsjust while the gardens were a place for contemplation, they were also a place where poets, writers, officials and philosophers collected and discussed the Their latest theories and philosophy. They also discussed deep philosophy and complex religion issues. In order not to be annoyed, they often created hidden rooms where they could discuss their ideas in private. This image shows a secret room in the rising waves pavilion at Suzhou.AuthorCorridRides to protect from the rain of the Suzhou area, rained a lot. If domestic helpers needed to bring food to the master and garden lover, it was useful to walk along the corridors instead of having to walk through the garden in the rain.Corridents are fundamental for the garden architecture in Suzhou, south of the river Yangzi. This is the moon looking at the pavilion in the couple garden at suzhou.authorcalm places to fix the grill to the moongardens can be for many things, including: looking at the scenery, writing poetry, drinking tea, listening to the sound of one Waterfall, a painting and enjoying the rain without wetting. But they are also excellent to fix the moon, especially to watch the full moon in September during the autumn moon festival.ho year, my â €
