Advanced: See Jam-As above for a more advanced mix of two scales. In addition, notice, I put accents in several places of the 120BPM version. Often, the accents fell into Beat One, sometimes in 2 and 4 . the ideas for doing it more danceable. Double A ♯ à "DroneA ♯ ~ strings In the second time through the 120BPM version are achieved by simply adding open strings to or where you can together with the melody notes. .. When you play on the D chain, add open A. When playing in one, add E. Open E.À, when playing on and string, add to ... Consider it. "This is the simple secret to sound A ♯ à, ~ à" fiddle-y. A ♯ A ♯ à, ~ ". Lateral note: The chord changes in this version is my own agreement. You probably will not find the G & D chords that I have here in a traditional version of Eyed Joe cotton Bluegrass. Most of the time it is a chord (one). The excavation simplicity, but I also like a little movement at times. I added the G Chords in Section A and the Chords of D in section B only because I liked them. I think they enhance the peculiar modal quality, this melody has intrinsically. Throughout these lines, also altered the melody a little to my liking. I really like tied notes that hit the 4th beat and hold the first beat of the next measure and, thinking more like a composer, using "motif", "I found some other places to adapt to these little ones ± as gems. " I think these elements improve the modal trance. Like the state of áimo, this melody has. I hope you enjoy it as much as me.
