New "Thinking through Sources" activities in LaunchPad extend and amplify the "Working with Evidence" source projects from the book. His master's thesis, "Universal History and the Terrors of Human Progress," is about the changing meaning big-picture historians have found in the human story as a whole, and is worthwhile for social studies teachers. Sometimes gently arguing with the narrative text, the features demonstrate that history is a dynamic and constantly evolving discipline. • Margin review questions emphasize "comparison," "connection," and "change." • At the end of each chapter, a short Reflections section raises provocative, sometimes quasi-philosophical, questions about the craft of the historian and the unfolding of the human story.
