Tonight when we watch Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 online, the ranch is opening its doors to a new foe. The Paramount Network show is already in the back half of season 4, but there's still a ton of drama coming for John Dutton (Kevin Costner) and family. Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 premieres at 8 p.m. ET. Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 is titled "I Want to Be Him," which hints at some kind of jealousy on the part of a character. Could the person in question be Jamie Dutton (Wes Bentley)? He has grappled with envy before and is in a tough situation right now, caught between his biological father and the man who raised him. Meanwhile, the latter made a bold move in last week's episode. John invited his new activist foe, Summer Higgins (Piper Perabo), to the ranch. It's hard to see their completely opposite viewpoints meshing, but then again, John can be very charming when he wants to be. As for Beth Dutton (Kelly Reilly), she seems to be relishing her new role at Market Equities. "I'm something bad," she declares at one point, legs stacked defiantly on her desk. Here's everything you need to watch Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 online, even without cable. And while you wait for episode 7, you can listen to the Yellowstone podcast to learn more about the show. Watch a promo here: How to watch Yellowstone season 4 anywhere on Earth Just because Paramount Network isn't available everywhere doesn't mean you need to miss Yellowstone season 4 if you're away from home. Watching along with the rest of the internet can be pretty easy. With the right VPN (virtual private network), you can stream the show from wherever you go. We've evaluated many options, and the best VPN is ExpressVPN (opens in new tab). It meets the VPN needs of the vast majority of users, offering outstanding compatibility with most devices and impressive connection speeds. It's also affordable at $12.95 per month. (Signing up for longer periods of six months or a year reduces the cost even more.) How to watch Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 in the US U.S. fans can watch Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 today (Sunday, December 5) at 8 p.m. ET on Paramount Network. Paramount Network is available with a cable package. If you've already cut the cord, you can watch Yellowstone season 4 on several live TV streaming services, including Sling TV, Fubo TV, Philo, YouTube TV and DirecTV Stream. Of these options, we recommend Sling TV (one of the best streaming services and best cable TV alternatives), Just add to the Comedy Extra package ($6) to get Paramount Network. Fubo is also a great choice, with more channels. Both services are available on most, if not all, of the best streaming devices. How to watch Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 for freeYou can also watch the Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 for FREE on the Paramount Network website (opens in new tab). Just click here (opens in new tab), select "Start 24-Hour Pass", and register with your email address. If you want to watch the entire season live, however, you'll need one of the best cable TV alternatives mentioned above.Is Yellowstone season 4 episode 6 on Peacock or Paramount Plus?While seasons 1-3 of the series are streaming on Peacock, Yellowstone season 4 will not be available until after it concludes on Paramount Network – sometime in 2022.Yellowstone is not on Paramount Plus either, though its upcoming spinoffs 1883 and 6666 will be.Can you watch Yellowstone season 4 in the UK?There's bad news for Brits. Previous seasons of Yellowstone have been available on Paramount Network UK and Channel 5's streaming service My5 (opens in new tab) for free (with a valid TV license). However, Paramount Network UK and My5 haven't announced a Yellowstone season 4 release date. British fans will have to wait, possibly for some time. Anyone who is traveling in the U.K. and wants to use the streaming services they've already paid for will need ExpressVPN (opens in new tab).How to watch Yellowstone season 4 in CanadaCanadian fans can watch Yellowstone 4 on the Paramount Network if they get the channel through their cable provider. Travelers in Canada who want to use their existing streaming subscriptions can look into ExpressVPN (opens in new tab). These days, you don't need a cable package or even a television to enjoy full episodes of your favorite TV shows whenever you want. There are plenty of websites out there that let you stream free TV shows online — many of which include some of today's most popular programs. We've compiled a list of only the best free and legal TV show sources currently out there. There are pros and cons to each, but there's definitely something for everyone no matter what kind of show you might be looking to watch. With Crackle, you can watch full episodes of your favorite TV shows (in addition to movies) and create personal watch lists so you can keep track of everything you're watching. Since it's a totally free service with accessibility across multiple major platforms (including mobile with the free Crackle app), there are some commercials rolled into the programming. Regardless, Crackle is a great alternative that you can enjoy viewing on your computer or with one of its apps on your mobile device. All you need to do is create a free account to start watching. Select the TV tab in the top menu or search for a show title, then choose the episode you want and enjoy. You can also use filter options to browse through shows based on genre, alphabetical order, recently added, full episodes, clips, trailers and what's coming soon. Tubi is another alternative that operates legally through license agreements. And just like Crackle, it also includes movies. Tubi is totally free with a user account, which you can use to set up your watch queue or pick up where you left off from watching something previously. The platform tracks your viewing history so that it can learn about your preferences to make better suggestions for you. Browse through all your standard categories such as Action, Drama, Comedy, and others or take a look at some of the interesting categories like Cult Classics and Highly Rated on Rotten Tomatoes. With over 50,000 shows and movies available and more being added all the time, Tubi TV is quickly growing to become a TV favorite for internet users everywhere. While Popcornflix is mainly known for its great range of full-length movies, documentaries, foreign films, and original web series, it's also a great place to check out for unique TV shows that are hard to find anywhere else, including cable TV. If you're a millennial looking for some serious childhood nostalgia, you'll want to check out Popcornflix's 90's TV offering featuring classics such as The Legend of Zelda, Sonic the Hedgehog, The Adventures of Super Mario 3 Bros., and more. Its TV show offering isn't exactly huge, but it might be worth checking out if you're looking for something different. Preroll ads will also play when you start watching, but you can start watching anything without having to sign up for a free account if you're just looking to try it out quick. Vudu is Walmart's pay-per-use TV show and movie streaming service, with a number of shows and movies available to watch for free. The free ones have ads, but for a platform that offers high-quality, relatively popular shows from networks like CBS, Fox, HBO and more, those ads are definitely tolerable. You can filter TV shows by genre or select the checkbox for Free TV only, which filters out all the paid content so all you see is what's available to watch for free. As a nice bonus, you can also browse by Most Watched, Release Date and Recently Added to find hidden gems you might not be able to find otherwise. With the live-streaming Pluto TV platform, you can channel surf over 100 free channels in genres such as news, entertainment, sports, comedy, and more. Some of the content is live and some of it isn't. It's a bit like RabbitTV Plus, except you don't have to pay an annual fee to watch. It's similar to traditional cable; you can check out what's currently on without a goal in mind for what to watch. Although you won't be able to catch hit network shows, you'll be able to tune into many major networks' news broadcasts and find familiar episodes of other relatively popular shows. ShareTV is a search engine-like hub for TV shows (as well as movies). Described as a community-based website for fans of network television, the site claims to have every show you could possibly think of—complete with countdowns to the next new episode. Browse through genres or check out What's New Tonight and Trending Shows. Select a show episode and use the checkbox options for Free, Purchase, Subscription, or TV Everywhere to find what you're looking for. Selecting an episode will expand a summary and list of sources where you can watch it. Look for the tv_ everywhere label, meaning it's free to watch. Similar to ShareTV, Yidio is a TV show source aggregator that points you in the direction of other third-party hosts where you should be able to watch a particular episode. You can use the right sidebar to browse by genre and the menu at the top to filter available shows by what's available on several premium streaming services. Of course, if you're looking for something to watch for free, you'll want to select the Free filter. When you select a show, you'll be shown a summary based on IMDb info along with several thumbnails of episodes that are available. Select any thumbnail to be taken to the specific episode listing. The downside to using Yidio is that its free listings aren't the most accurate or update to date, and you may come across a show that only has short clips rather than full episodes available to watch for free despite its listing in the Free category. There are lots of ads to Amazon, Google Play and iTunes in the way, but if the episode is indeed free, links to free sources (such as YouTube) will be available at the very bottom for you to click on. Shout Factory TV delivers over 2,000 hours of cult and classic TV shows that have helped shape today's pop culture. This is a site where you'll be able to find some of the most well-known shows and flicks that many other sites simply don't have, making it a worthwhile site to add to your bookmarks. Everything can be watched for free with ads, or you can opt to get an ad-free subscription. As a digital channel, Shout Factory TV is also available on a variety of popular platforms including Apple TV, Roku, Samsung Smart TVs, Amazon Prime, Twitch and more. The major downside to using this site on the web is that there doesn't appear to be a user account creation feature. So if you want to sign into an account to save videos, get new suggestions and pick up where you left off on what you were watching, you're out of luck. The Internet Archive isn't an official streaming service, but it's one of the best places to look for public access of digital content. You can access old websites, software, games, music, video content and a massive library of public domain books. In its Television section, you can browse through TV recordings that include shows, commercials and even government proceedings. Many of these pieces of content have hundreds of thousands of views. Content is organized into collections based on type. You can also use the filters on the left side to find shows by year, topic, collection, creator and language. Lots of people don't realize that YouTube is actually a great place to look for television shows. While you won't exactly get access to the most current or popular shows (unless you pay), nor a guaranteed high-quality viewing experience, you might still be pleasantly surprised by what's available on the web's largest video sharing network. Just search for a show title and see what comes up. For example, if you search Boy Meets World—an old ABC family sitcom from the 90s—several uploaded episodes from virtually every season will come up. On the other hand, if you search for Grey's Anatomy—a more current and popular television drama—you'll notice results will come up where you'll have to pay a fee to stream it legally on YouTube. Some people get away with uploading popular TV show episodes for a certain time before they're eventually reported or caught by YouTube. Depending on the timing and the show you're looking for, you might be able to find something that actually shouldn't be there due to copyright restrictions. If you are in the UK or love UK programming, then you'll want to know about TVPlayer. This free TV streaming service offers 95 channels for free on both desktop and mobile devices, including shows that are currently airing live. 30 premium channels are available to users who upgrade to a Plus account for a monthly fee. (Sorry, U.S. readers; this site is just for readers across the pond.) Free channels include popular ones like BBC 1, Discovery, ITV, Dave, Five, History, Lifetime and many more. All you have to do to sign up is create an account with your email address, verify your account creation and start watching! Obviously, the big downside with this one is that it's restricted to users in the UK. If you're located somewhere else, like in the US, you can still create an account and sign in, but if you try to watch something, TVPlayer will first check to make sure you're in the UK and will block access if you're not. Given that so many people have discovered the many advantages of Virtual Private Networks (VPNs), it's possible that you could get around TVPlayer's geographical restrictions if you tried. Having said that, more streaming services are seriously cracking down on the VPN trend (like Netflix for example, so don't be surprised if TVPlayer doesn't work with your VPN either! If you have a TV show you love and you want to watch it for free because you missed it or maybe you don't get that channel, a great way to catch up on it is to visit the network's website and see if it's available for streaming. All of the networks below show some full episodes but also clips as well. Here are some of the popular TV networks out there that provide options for streaming their TV shows: NBC: NBC does a great job of quickly posting and keeping their TV shows around so you have plenty of time to watch them. It's even possible for you to catch up on an entire series right from their website. USA: Part of NBC, the USA Network brings you access to all of your favorite USA shows, including full episodes the day after they've aired. ABC: They have full-length videos of the latest episode of every show as well as video clips, highlights, and sneak peeks into all your favorite ABC shows. CBS: At CBS you can watch shows for free after they've aired on CBS. There are quite a few advertiser interruptions during the streaming video, but you'll know when they're coming because they are clearly marked on the screen. CW TV: Watch your favorite CW TV network shows — no subscription required. While you're at it, you should also check out CW Seed. DisneyNOW: You can watch Disney channel movies at DisneyNOW. There's a page that lists all the shows you can watch, plus some fun category pages. FOX: FOX posts free TV shows for you to watch one day after they've aired on TV but they remain locked so that you can watch them until eight days after they've aired. The CW: The day after the CW television shows air you'll be able to watch them for free at their website. PBS: PBS has a ton of free TV episodes online including Masterpiece Theater, PBS NewsHour, and Frontline. MTV: MTV has full episodes of all your favorite MTV shows, including clips and after shows. Freeform (ABC Family): The day after the TV shows on Freeform air, they are put online so that you can enjoy them. A&E: Watch full episodes of shows like Bates Motel, Storage Wars, and Dog the Bounty Hunter. You might be required to provide your television provider information to watch certain streaming content on network platforms. Thanks for letting us know!
