Coleman campers offer a range of RVs and travel trailers known for their comfort, affordability, and unique features. The company was founded in the early 1900s and has since become a popular choice among adventurers. Coleman's campers are designed to provide a reliable and feature-packed home away from home. The company offers various models, including the Lantern LT and Rubicon, which prioritize luxurious living areas and fuel efficiency. With prices ranging from $10,000 to $21,000, Coleman campers can be found at different price points, making them an affordable option in the RV market. Coleman campers are renowned for their blend of comfort, reliability, and affordability. The Coleman Lantern LT, one of the most budget-friendly options on the market, offers a plethora of features without sacrificing quality or dependability. Priced between $12,999 to $13,995, this camper is significantly more affordable than many new cars. The Lantern LT can accommodate up to 10 people, featuring various layouts and standing height inside its 21.5-foot length. Notable exterior components include an almost pass-through storage compartment, propane tank holder, and roll-out power awning. Inside, the camper boasts a queen bed, dinette, kitchen, private bathroom, bunk beds, air conditioning, and electric fireplace, though the bathroom lacks its own sink. The trailer's lower price point is reflected in the absence of a proper air conditioner or heater; instead, cold air comes from a small wall unit vent, and heat is provided by an electric fireplace. While the Lantern LT is a budget-friendly option, it is essential to manage expectations regarding the quality of materials used, such as cabinetry and countertops. The Coleman Rubicon is another popular choice for adventurers seeking a reliable, affordable, and feature-packed home-away-from-home. This sleek, fuel-efficient, and comfortable trailer is perfect for solo travelers or couples. The Rubicon's design does not compromise comfort, and it comes packed with amenities. The Coleman Rubicon 1200RK is a lightweight, towable trailer ideal for off-grid adventures, while the 1400BH is a versatile single-axle travel trailer that can sleep three adults. Coleman campers have a long history of producing high-quality, reliable products that cater to the needs of adventurers and families alike. The Coleman brand has been around since the early 1900s when William Coffin Coleman started sellin his own design gas lamp. Over time, the company made more outdoor products like tents, grills, sleeping bags, lanterns, coolers, and camping gas. In '67, they got into RVs with a pop-up camper that became the best-sellin trailer in America right away. Now, Coleman campers are famous for bein affordable and havin all the important features. The 2025 Coleman 13B is one of these, it's a compact camper at just $10,000, but some dealers are offerin it for $9,999. This price makes it very attractive to people who want a budget-friendly option without skimpin on essential stuff. Even though it's small, at 15'11", it's been designed to make the most of its space. Coleman campers are also known for bein lightweight and durable, with things like black diamond plate rock guards and an enclosed underbelly that give 'em extra protection. While it's a budget-friendly option, some sacrifices might be expected in terms of room and features when you're buyin at this price point. Coleman's good name for building excellent trailers lets you trust them to get the job done. Their campers are also easy to use and won't cost an arm and a leg, making 'em perfect for people lookin' to hit the trails without breakin' the bank. With Coleman trailers, you can count on having a comfy spot to hang out in, even when you're way out there in the woods. Whether you're solo, with someone special, or bringin' the whole crew along, Coleman's got a trailer that'll suit your needs and make your journey all the more enjoyable. Q: How much does a Coleman camper cost? A: It depends on the model and the year it was made. For example, the 2025 Coleman 13B costs $10,000, while the Coleman Lantern LT is gonna set you back $13,000. The Coleman Rubicon 1200RK's price tag reads $15,000. When tryin' to figure out how much your Coleman trailer is worth, consider things like its size, condition, age, and any extra features it might have, such as how many people it can sleep or how efficient it is on gas. Coleman's been around for over 50 years, makin' 'em a well-respected name in the camping game. They're known for buildin' trailers that are affordable, reliable, and full of useful features. Different Coleman models come with different bells and whistles, which can affect their worth. For instance, the Coleman Lantern LT's got more luxury and livin' space, while the Coleman Light is smaller and lighter. The specific model you've got will play a big role in determinin' its value. The age of your trailer matters too - older models might be worth less, especially if they're no longer made or have been replaced by newer ones. And don't forget to take into account any wear and tear, repairs, or upgrades that've been done on the trailer. A well-maintained camper with minimal defects will usually be worth more than one that's been neglected.
