Reviews This product has not yet been rated. Well, Christmas is over. Are you looking for a great way to have a good time together as a family? Do I have a great indoor scavenger hunt for indoor fun! This is a great indoor activity for family fun on a snow day, rainy days, a school closure, birthday parties (or any time!!).
There will be some hurry scurry in your house, so you do have to be ready for that. But kids really enjoy scavenger hunts so I think a little bit of a hurry scurry inside is worth it for this purpose. Kids of ALL ages will love a fun hunt. First things first. Its always lots of fun to think about what is at the end of your scavenger hunt so you can bring some excitement into the activity. What would you like to have or do at the end of your scavenger hunt? Its fun to have treats of some sort-candy, or cupcakes for example. But if youre like us, you are probably sweet-ed out after Christmas! So you could also have an activity waiting for them at the end of the scavenger hunt-fun things like a chance for them to jump in the car and go with you to do something special. Remember, they don't need to add additional cost, kids love quality time with you. Pizza and a movie Friends coming over Trip to Nanas house (hint hint) Or it might be fun to have a little craft packet of some sort that youve put together or purchased so they have an activity to continue doing after theyre done with the scavenger hunt. The next thing to think about is what are the locations in your house that will be good stopping spots on this scavenger hunt? Perhaps you have a piano, an unusual chair, or a fireplace. Or the location can be a simple thing like the washing machine, the bathtub, the childs bedroom, or the front door for instance. You can make it harder for older kids by making the location a bit more difficult to figure out. Like more specific household items a painting, something in a cupboard, or behind the couch. So take a few minutes right now to make your list of locations. Write them down on a piece of paper, you will need to work with them a bit so you cant do this in your head. For younger children (age 4-6) choose 5-6 locations. Consider 7-8 locations for kids ages 7-10. 10 locations in order. Number your locations so that the kids need to zig-zag back-and-forth through the house so its not easy and convenient. Don't put them in an organized, straight-line order! This increases the fun. Lastly decide on the starting place for your scavenger hunt. This is where you will hand them their clues. Place this at the top of your list (before location #1) and label it as the starting place. Note: The last location will also be the place where you place the treats or treasure you decided on earlier. With your list in hand we will add the locations to our clue cards!! Ive made a template for you to help make this indoor scavenger hunt. Like how do I make the clues, so theyll be in the right order and get the kids to the right spot at the end? And then how do I make sure I hide the clues in the right spots? The Free Printable Clue Cards makes this slam dunk easy! (These are for your personal use only please.) Download files and print off the Indoor Scavenger Hunt with Free Printable Clues (this is the link). Print the clues off on colored paper. There are 5 clues in my free template. Page one has two clues. You only need one copy of this page. This is the first card you give at the starting place and one Clue Cards. Page two has 3 Clue Cards. Make extra copies of page number two to have enough Clue Card on page one is given out at the starting spot. It is labeled Starting Clue and will have the CLUE for location #1. You will keep this clue with you. The second Card on page one says Hide at location #1. You will have the CLUE for location #2. On the top Clue Card on page two where it says Hide in location # write #2 and what that location is from your list. This card will have the CLUE for location #4- so write #4 in Location write #3 and what that location is from your list. This card will have the CLUE for location #4- so write #4 in the blank. On the bottom Clue Card on page two where it says Hide in location # write #4 in the blank. Repeat this pattern until all of your Clue Cards are numbered and have the locations written in. Don't stop to do anything else until you are done- or you will get mixed up. (Ask me how I know this! Ha!) So if have 10 locations for the kids to go on their scavenger hunt. Youll have a starting spot card and a series of 10 additional Clue Cards for a total of 11 cards. Now that you have all of the places written in, youre going to come back and write clues. Write with pen or markers in the blank space provided. Your starting spot is going to have a clue that takes them to your first location that the kids need to find. Write a little clue about location #1. It does not have to rhyme but should give them a hint where theyre supposed to go without telling them directly where it is. So, for instance, my starting place could be the kitchen. That is where I will hand them the Starting Clue that I keep with me. My location #1 is my piano. Perhaps my clue could be- Sing me a tune- it would put me over the moon! Thats if I want it to rhyme. Otherwise, I could just say- Head some place where you can play me a tune. NOTE- Draw a little picture for the younger kids that cant read yet. Do the best you can at drawing, or you could print a picture of a piano from the internet if you prefer and glue it on the clue card. The next clue card says, CLUE for location #2. Write a little clue about location #2. Lets say the second location is going to be the bathtub. You could say, Rub a dub dub, three men in a Or if you dont want it to rhyme it could just say. This always helps you get squeaky clean! All right so the next Clue Card is going to have a clue that takes you to location number three. Keep writing your clues until you have filled each Clue Card appropriately. Dont get too hung up on the clues- just have fun with it! So now you just are going to need to place your clues in the right locations.
Cut your clues apart on the solid lines. It is easiest if you keep them in order, but this works even if they get out of order! No worries. You will keep your starting clue and put it in your pocket. Then take each CLUE card and hide it in the location you wrote in the upper left corner of the card. For instance, in my example my location is #1- piano. I wrote Hide at location #1- the piano in the box in the upper left hand corner of the clue card. Dont make the clue too obvious. Hide it just a little bit. I might be good to tape them in place. Then take your second location clue and go there to hide the clue. In my example that was the bathtub. So go into the bathroom and tape it on the wall of the tub above the water handle for example. Again dont make it too obvious. Youll continue this until you have all the Clue Cards hidden in their location, including the final clue. Finally, put the prize, craft kit, or even just a congratulations note at the last location along with the clue you put there. Now all that you will still have in your pocket) is your starting clue. All the rest are in the correct locations. When the time is right, gather the kids, explain the scavenger hunt turns out.
My grandkids love these and we have them fairly regularly. We do them outside when the weather is nice, and weve done them asinside activities at each of the clue places. The activity may be a little puzzle or a coloring sheet or something just for fun. Theyll complete those as they go. But usually theyre so excited its hard to spend that time at each clue location Think of how much fun this would be for a birthday party or for classroom use at school or at home! There are SO MANY different ways to do this! Here are some ideas. Use pictures to make the clues for the littles that cant read yet making it a more simple hunt Create rhyming cluesthe cornier the better Use indoor scavenger hunt riddles to make the clues more difficult and exciting challenges if desired Have different activities to do at each location in the house- puzzle, coloring sheet, craft, food, etc. Increase the competition for older siblingsby having a time limit for the indoor hunt. You could even set an alarm clock or timer to ring!! Make teams as a fun way to involve the whole family- mixing young kids with older kids or adults When you have two or more teams, print the cards on different colors of paper. Make the order of locations different for each team. Which team will finish first? If the weather is nice make it an Outdoor Scavenger Hunt Photo Scavenger Hunt-take a picture at each location to prove they were in the right place for each clue, perhaps doing something funny. Digital cameras on phones make this easy! Create a neighborhood scavenger hunt for indoor fun! Be sure to post some pictures and let me see how yours turns out! Of course, you may have such a hurry scurry of activity around you that you cant snap a picture in time. We did this with our grandkids a few days ago. We took a little trip for Christmas this year our younger daughter's house. The kids had a new location to figure out as far as the clues go- which made it a whole different type of hunt. The weather was so warm we did it outside. It was a big hit. There are so many creative ideas and indoor play ideas on Welcome To Nana's, here are a few to get you started!
