Creating an engaging presentation for social media is essential when you want to show your team the ROI of your latest social campaign or impress a client yourse trying to land. Social media management tools can support this process by helping you organize data, track performance, and present insights more effectively. With an engaging presentation youll captivate your audience and effectively convey your message. This article will help you learn how to showcase your work and deliver the key message while keeping your audience hooked. Pair this new knowledge with our free social media presentation is a visual document that shows how social media can be used to achieve specific goals or objectives. It can be used to pitch an idea to a potential client, to show how social media can be used in a marketing campaign, or simply to educate others about the benefits of using social media. When creating a social media presentation, consider the following: Who is your audience? Pick examples that will address your listeners specific pain points and make them nod in agreement. What are you pitching to achieve? Have a clear goal in mind: are you pitching to land a new client or showcasing your quarterly results and ROI to non-social-media-savvy execs? What story do you want to tell? Use your storytelling skills by including the problem, the actions to solve it, the resolution, and the results; always end with a call to action. What is the hook? Hooking your audience early ensures you have their attention throughout. A good hook and withholding just enough information draws people in and intrigues them immediately. Think shocking statistics, rhetorical questions, growth stats, engagement metrics or mind-blowing KPIs. Where do you even start creating your presentation and tone of voice. Your social media marketing presentation should point out the advantages of personalized social media content and drive your main message home. Properly showcasing your work can help you make a good first impression on potential clients and build a stronger relationship with the right social media marketing presentation. Ready, get set, read! Using on saying in a social media presentation beforehand, you can be sure that all of your points have a good transition and that you cover everything you set out to go over. Structure & organize the social media marketing presentation. Now that you have an idea of what the message should be, the design and organizing step implies molding your ideas into a digestible and appealing form for your audience. You want to include in your presentation. From there, decide on an organizational structure for this information. For example, the marketing specialist Darleen Schiavo, notes that the most effective way to present social media data, especially to non-marketing stakeholders, is through clear, concise bullet points. She explains: Tables and pie charts are pretty, but they all start to look the same to me, and my mind tends to wander. Presenting straightforward facts in bullet points, such as where youre performing well, where youre falling short, and what actions you can take, really speaks the language of stakeholders. Also, Darleen encourages to still include charts and tables, but keep in mind that readers are more likely to remember the key facts. Heres an idea of how you can structure your presentation in three broad sections. Use bullet points within each section to keep your content clear, concise, and easy to follow: Check out our top picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presentation for the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where the picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where the picks for the picks f understand the target audience, and youve come up with some brilliant content ideas. Hooray! Now its time to start thinking about the way you are going to showcase those social media slides to your client. Are you planning on sending a social media slides for each platform? Have you already asked your designer friend to create some mockups in Photoshop? Or maybe you still have those secret test pages where you preview what your posts are going to look like. Are you maybe trying to save a ton of time and going with a premade template from Pitchs proposal template collection or that lucky template youve used a few times before (and gotten amazing results with). All of these solutions can work just fine up until the point when the client needs you to do a couple of changes. Then, a couple more. Lets analyze 3 environments you could use to present your work and explore what each of them allows you to do:1. Planable social media collaboration tool with great UI/UXA dedicated social media managementtool is the right choice. Yes, its obvious we think that. Its also true. Content calendar example in Planable Planable offers one place to create, collaborate, showcase, and approve social media content. We help you preview Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram, TikTok, Google My Business, Threads and YouTube posts Im outta breath with so many platforms we support exactly as they appear when published. We really offer one of the best marketing presentation formats you can think of. With Planable, you can visualize content by week or month and see everything at a glance across all your pages. As a comprehensive social media scheduler, you can strategically plan and schedule your content by dragging and dropping posts in your predefined time slots. One calendar, one integrated social media marketing strategy presentation across multiple channels. Social media post editor in PlanableYour work needs to be showcased in a visual way. Give your client a true representation of the end result. Dont let him see a link, 3 rows of text, and 4 images instead of a Facebook carousel post. Give Planable a try. That way, when the time comes to write your invoice letter and get paid for your hard work, your clients wont hesitate because they could see all the effort you put into making them happy! With Planable, teams can plan and create content for pretty much all the major channels out there. Were talking about: Showcase all that hard work described above to clients in all its beauty without relying on spreadsheets and clunky mockups. Make social media presentations with Planables mockup pages to show all this stuff to my client!? No? Thought so. The format you present your work is just as important as the work itself. And lets be real, test pages and screenshot-laden PowerPoint presentations are messy. Enter mock-up pages. In Planable, you can create a custom page for any of the 9 supported platforms quickly and hassle-free. You dont even have to connect the actual page. If you don't have permission and don't want to ask the client just yet, you can still show them your workspaceSelect the relevant platformClick on Create a mockup pageWhile were at it, here are some of the details you can tweak to make your mockup pages as enticing and settings: 2. Powerpoint or Keynote best for primary social media presentation templates Social media PPT presentations or Keynote slides can be distributed easily to the team and clients. You can use text, photos, illustrations, drawings, tables, graphs, and movies to effectively walk your audience through the presentation. So far, so good. You can choose to structure your work by social media channels (Facebook/LinkedIn/Instagram/Twitter posts), time (month/week/day), or formats (single image/video/carousel/gif, etc.)Unfortunately, even if you go the extra mile and manage to create previews of the social media posts and add them to your presentation, these are often incomplete. Take the carousel, for example. Showing the rest of the cards would imply extra mockups or a separate email with links to Google Drive, where you would have a folder with all the images. 3. Google slides popular for standard templates designed for social media presentations. You can work on slides together with your team without any special software, and you can see what other people are doing at all times. Plus, every change made will be saved automatically, so theres no need to worry about losing anything important. Google Slides predecessor, PowerPoint, has always been a complicated tool that makes it hard to create simple presentations. Not everyone understands Powerpoints options and what they mean at first glance, which leads many beginners into confusion when starting out. By comparison, Google Slides is a web-based tool, you dont need to download any software, and you can start creating your slides from the get-go You can easily embed videos (and other media you can think of), which makes it super convenient for social media managers looking to showcase their work or mockup accounts. As with any new software, there is a learning curve when you first start using Google Slides. Among the biggest drawbacks of this tool for presenting your social media work is the limited collection of themes and limited file types for exporting. Are you planning on sending a social media Powerpoint presentation with slides for each platform? Have you already asked your designer friend to create some mockups in Photoshop? Or maybe you still have those secret test pages where you preview what your posts are going to look like. All of these solutions can work just fine up until the point when the client needs you to do a couple of changes. It has to allow the marketing team and client to see pixel-perfect content previews of the social media work should be rich in emojis, active hashtags, page tags, or gifs. Your client needs to be adapted to the intended channel accordingly, whether there are image formats or character limits; Ideally, your client should be able to visualize content by week or month and see everything at a glance across all the pages; It needs to make collaboration easy for your team and clients. Changes to the original work are inevitable, so make sure to plan ahead. For instance, your solution should make it possible to give feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments to comments, resolve comments once feedback is implemented, and collaborate in real-time; Whatever solution you choose, make sure it improves your teams efficiency. No extra clicks, no need for extra communication channels to give and receive feedback. Everything should be automated & push notifications should be an exception. This is why Planable has the option to directly publish your postswithout manual work. We all know there are many things to do before delivering a presentation. You must be confident, practice in front of the mirror, organize your slides and devices, and take care of any last-minute adjustments. Here are a couple of valuable assets that will help you with presentations in general. Made to stick: why some ideas survive and others sie by Chip Heath and Dan HeathThe secret to making your message stick is all in the details. speaking skills are a career accelerator, especially in social media marketing. According to The Sprout Social Index, 45% of marketer leaders say sharing social data in a contextualized way is crucial for securing social investment. Whether youre using dashboards or data visualizations, you have to speak on your data if you want to get ahead. If that makes your palms sweaty, dont panic. Skills can be learned. It just takes time and practice. If youre ready to start giving more compelling social media marketing presentation, expert advice on speech delivery and templates to speed up your deck creation process. What is a social media presentation? A social media presentation is a speech, lecture or pitch in which elements of a social media marketing presentation is tailored to the needs of a specific situation or goal. Broadly, these presentations can be categorized into the following: Pitch presentations: Here, the speaker aims to persuade the audience on a strategic initiative. This could involve pitching services to a potential client in an agency setting, or in-house teams pitching a new tool or process. Update presentations: These presentations keep stakeholders informed about the progress of a strategywins, opportunities, lessons learned, etc. Knowledge-sharing presentations has the power to give your social media efforts new advice, who better to turn to than a salesperson? Thats why we went to John Barrows, CEO of JB Sales for his guidance on presenting. Barrows provides professional sales training to companies like Salesforce, LinkedIn and Amazon, plus he has over 25 years worth of presentation experience. We asked him for his expert advice on giving exceptional presentations. Heres what he had to say. Know the ins and outs of your business priorities A great presentation is all about delivering value. Otherwise, you risk losing your audiences attention right from the start. We have seconds to get peoples attention these days, says Barrows. A persons most valuable asset is their time. You can give more engaging presentation simply by staying up to date on company goals and priorities. Get to know whats top of mind for senior leaders and other stakeholders so you can tailor your presentation content accordingly. On sales calls, Barrows does this by asking each individual attendee what they like to get out of the meeting. You can mimic this approach by setting up regular 1:1s with team members to stay up to date on their priorities. Practice, pr confidence and preparation. The more prepared you are, the more confident youll be in your presentation. Barrows refers to confidence and preparation that keeps everything on track. If you come in unprepared to a meeting and you get one curveball of a question, you tend to fall apart. Preparation gives you the confidence you need to adjust on the fly. Watch your playback footage It may make you cringe, but the best way to improve your presentation skills is to record yourself and watch it back. Barrows figured this out after taking a presentation skills course, but not through instructor feedback. It was watching himself back on video that showed him everything he wanted to fix. Common public speaking issueslike overusing filler words and standing with closed body languageare easy to spot on tape. The good news is, in increasingly distributed workforces, you don't have to set up a camera during your

You may look around and see a group of senior executives but at the end of the day, its really just watch the Zoom recording.
another person. When I was first starting out in sales, I would get nervous presenting in front of CEOs and people who I perceived to be smarter or more important than I was, says Barrows. Presenting can cause imposter syndrome. But, if you take a minute to connect with your audience, youll see theyre not that intimidating. We can all agree picture your audience naked is universally bad advice. Instead, picture your audience as your friends dad or a neighbor. Thinking of people as who they are in their daily lives can be a powerful way to fend off nerves.3 social media presentation templates to build off of It happens all the time: You set aside 30 minutes for deck creation and an hour later, youre late 18th century was an important element in the Industrial Revolution in Europe. The American Revolutionary War took place in the late 18th century, elements of Enlightenment thinking culminated in the Atlantic Revolutions. Revolutions. Revolutions began to challenge the legitimacy of monarchical and aristocratic power structures. The Industrial Revolution began mid-century, leading to radical changes in human society and the environment. The European colonization of the Americas and other parts of the world intensified and associated mass migrations of people grew in size as part of the Age of Sail. During the century, slave trading expanded across the shores of the Atlantic Ocean, while declining in Russia[1] and China.[2]Western historians have occasionally defined the 18th century otherwise for the purposes of their work. For example, the "short" 18th century may be defined as 17151789, denoting the period of time between the death of Louis XIV of France and the start of the French Revolution, with an emphasis on directly interconnected events. [3][4] To historians who expand the century to include larger historical movements, the "long" 18th century [5] may run from the Glorious Revolution of 1688 to the Battle of Waterloo in 1815[6] or even later, [7] France was the sole world superpower from 1659, after it defeated Spain, until 1815, when it was defeated by Britain and its coalitions following the Napoleonic Wars. In Europe, philosophers ushered in the Age of Enlightenment. This period coincided with the French Revolution of 1789, and was later compromised by the excesses of the Reign of Terror. At first, many monarchies of Europe embraced Enlightenment ideals, but in the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitions to oppose the French Revolution they feared loss of power and formed broad coalition they feared loss of power and formed broad coalition they feared loss of power and formed broad coalition they feared loss of power and formed broad coalition they feared loss of power and formed broad coalition they feared loss of power and formed broad coalition they feared loss of power and formed broad coalitio and the Seven Years' War, saw Great Britain triumph over its rivals to become the preeminent power in Europe. However, Britain's attempts to exert its authority over the Thirteen Colonies became a catalyst for the American Revolution. The 18th century also marked the end of the PolishLithuanian Commonwealth as an independent state. Its semi-democratic government system was not robust enough to prevent partition by the neighboring states of Austria, Prussia, and Russia. In West Asia, Nader Shah led Persia in successful military campaigns. The Ottoman Empire experienced a period of peace, taking no part in European wars from 1740 to 1768. As a result, the empire was not exposed to Europe's military improvements during the Seven Years' War. The Ottoman military consequently lagged behind and suffered several defeats against Russia in the second half of the century. In South Asia, the death of Mughal emperor Aurangzeb was followed by the expansion of the Maratha Confederacy and an increasing level of European influence and control in the region. In 1739, Persian emperor Nader Shah invaded and plundered Delhi, the capital of the Mughal Empire. Later, his general Ahmad Shah Durrani scored another victory against the Marathas, the then dominant power in India, in the Third Battle of Panipat in 1761.[8] By the middle of the century, the British East India Company began to conquer eastern India,[9][8] and by the end of the century, the Anglo-Mysore Wars against Tipu Sultan and his father Hyder Ali, led to Company rule over the south.[10][11]In East Asia, the century was marked by the High Qing era, a period characterized by significant cultural and territorial expansion. This period also experienced relative peace and prosperity, allowing for societal growth, increasing literacy rates, flourishment of the arts as well as scientific knowledge and advancements, which were introduced to Japan through the Dutch port of Nagasaki. In Southeast Asia, the KonbaungAyutthaya Wars and the Ty Sn Wars broke out while the Dutch East India Company established increasing levels of control over the Mataram Sultanate. In Africa, the Ethiopian Empire underwent the Zemene Mesafint, a period when the country was ruled by a class of regional noblemen and the emperor was merely a figurehead. The Atlantic slave trade also saw the continued involvement of states such as the Oyo Empire. In Oceania, the European colonization of Australia and New Zealand began during the late half of the century. In the Americas, the United States declared its independence from Great Britain. In 1776, Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. In 1789, George Washington was inaugurated as the first president. Benjamin Franklin traveled to Europe where he was hailed as an inventor. Examples of his inventions include the lightning rod and bifocal glasses. Tpac

As displayed on the screen, our focus today revolves around those of you here with specific interests in will find my talk particularly relevant. This presentation is intended to spark discussions and serve as a starting point. How do you start a speech first? Begin with a captivating hook or an attention-grabbing statement to engage the audience from the start. What is an example of a media presentation for social media is essential when you want to show your team the ROI of your latest social campaign or impress a client youre trying to land. Social media management tools can support this process by helping you organize data, track performance, and present insights more effectively. With an engaging presentation youll captivate your message. This article will help you learn how to showcase your work and deliver the key message while keeping your audience hooked. Pair this new knowledge with our free social media presentation is a visual document that shows how social media can be used to achieve specific goals or objectives. It can be used to pitch an idea to a potential client, to show how social media can be used in a marketing campaign, or simply to educate others about the benefits of using social media. When creating a social media presentation, consider the following: Who is your audience? Pick examples that will address your listeners specific pain points and make them nod in agreement. What are you trying to achieve? Have a clear goal in mind: are you pitching to land a new client or showcasing your guarterly results and ROI to non-social-media-savvy execs? What story do you want to tell? Use your storytelling skills by including the problem, the actions to solve it, the resolution, and the results; always end with a call to action. What is the hook? Hooking your audience early ensures you have their attention throughout. A good hook and withholding just enough information draws people in and intrigues them immediately. Think shocking statistics, rhetorical questions, growth stats, engagement metrics or mind-blowing KPIs. Where do you even start creating your presentation? Different environments and audiences require a different presentation and tone of voice. Your social media content and drive your main message home. Properly showcasing your work can help you make a good first impression on potential clients and build a stronger relationship with existing ones. With this in mind, lets tackle the topic of presenting your social media marketing presentation. Ready, get set, read! weaknesses. If you are going to work with this client, their problems as well. Collaboration is one of the most common challenges in any business. The marketing department makes no exception. Create your social media presentation outline is a very important part of writing. Its basically the skeleton of your essay, and if youre going to have a good structure, then you need one. During the writing process, its key to make sure that your joints have a good transition and that you cover everything
your audience. You want them to lap up your content, so dont skimp out on the creativity. The first step is to make a list of all the information. For example, the marketing specialist Darleen Schiavo, notes that the most effective way to present social media data, especially to non-marketing stakeholders, is through clear, concise bullet points. She explains: Tables and pie charts are pretty, but they all start to look the same to me, and my mind tends to wander. Presenting straightforward facts in bullet points, such as where youre performing well, where youre falling short, and what actions you can take, really speaks the language of stakeholders. Also, Darleen encourages to still include charts and tables, but keep in mind that readers are more likely to remember the key facts. Heres an idea of how you can structure your presentation in three broad sections. Use bullet points within each section to keep your content clear, more. Lets analyze 3 environments you could use to present your work and explore what each of them allows you to do:1. Planable social media management tool is the right choice. Yes, its obvious we think that. Its also true. Content calendar example in Planable Planable offers one place to create, collaborate, showcase, and approve social media content. We help you preview Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram, TikTok, Google My Business, Threads and YouTube posts Im outta breath with so many platforms we support exactly as they appear when published. We really offer one of the best marketing presentation formats you can think of.With Planable, you can visualize content by week or month and see everything at a glance across all your pages. As a comprehensive social media scheduler, you can strategically plan and schedule your content by dragging and dropping posts in your predefined time slots. One calendar, one integrated social media marketing strategy presentation across multiple channels. Social media post editor in Planable Your work needs to be showcased in a visual way. Give your client a true representation of the end result. Don't let him see a link, 3 rows of text, and 4 images instead of a Facebook carousel post. Give Planable a try. That way, when the time comes to write your invoice lette and get paid for your hard work, your clients wont hesitate because they could see all the effort you put into making them happy! With Planable, teams can plan and create content for pretty much all the major channels out there. Were talking about: Showcase all that hard work described above to clients in all its beauty without relying on

pages and screenshot-laden PowerPoint presentations are messy. Enter mock-up pages. In Planable, you can create a custom page for any of the 9 supported platforms quickly and hassle-free. You dont even have to connect the actual page. If you dont have permission and dont want to ask the client just yet, you can still show them your work in context. Heres how you do it:Go to Add pages in your workspaceSelect the relevant platformClick on Create a mockup pages as enticing and personalized to your clients wishes as humanly possible: Profile imageCover photoPage descriptionLocationUsernamePage nameYour mock-up page is ready for feedback and collaboration! If you want to elevate your mockup page to the status of totally publishable content, simply connect it to a real account. You can find this option in your pages settings: 2. Powerpoint or Keynote best for primary social media presentation templates Social media PPT presentations or Keynote slides can be distributed easily to the team and clients. You can use text, photos, illustrations, drawings, tables, graphs, and movies to effectively walk your audience through the presentation. So far, so good. You can choose to structure your work by social media channels (Facebook/LinkedIn/Instagram/Twitter posts), time (month/week/day)
or formats (single image/video/carousel/gif, etc.) Unfortunately, even if you go the extra mile and manage to create previews of the social media posts and add them to your presentation, these are often incomplete. Take the carousel, for example. Showing the rest of the cards would imply extra mockups or a separate email with links to Google Drive where you would have a folder with all the images. 3. Google slides popular for standard templates designed for social media presentations. You can work on slides together with your team without any special software, and you can see what other people are doing at all times. Plus, every change made will be saved automatically, so theres no need to worry about losing anything important. Google Slides predecessor, PowerPoint, has always been a complicated tool that makes it hard to create simple presentations. starting out. By comparison, Google Slides is much more intuitive and user-friendly. Since Google Slides is a web-based tool, you dont need to download any software, and you can think of), which makes it super convenient for social media managers
presentation with slides for each platform? Have you already asked your designer friend to create some mockups in Photoshop? Or maybe you still have those secret test pages where you preview what your posts are going to look like. All of these solutions can work just fine up until the point when the client needs you to do a couple of changes. It has
to allow the marketing team and client to see pixel-perfect content previews of the social media posts; Any format, whether its text, video, gif, link, photo, album, or carousel, should be easy to show; Your social media work should be rich in emojis, active hashtags, page tags, or gifs. Your client needs to be able to see them as they will appear live; It has to allow your posts to be adapted to the intended channel accordingly, whether there are image formats or character limits; Ideally, your client should be able to visualize content by week or month and see everything at a glance across all the pages; It needs to make collaboration easy for your team and clients. Changes to the original work are inevitable, so make sure to plan ahead. For instance, your solution should make it possible to give feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments to comments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments to comments once feedback is implemented, and collaborate in real-time; Whatever solution you choose, make sure it improves your teams efficiency. No extra clicks, no need for the posts, to add attachments to comments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments to comments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments once feedback right next to the posts of the p making your message stick is all in the details. Once you know what makes people remember things, its easy to formulate a coherent and compelling argument for them! Chip & Dan Heaths book does exactly that (and more). It helps you understand how to make your audience remember the core message of your presentation. How to formulate your vision so that it sticks in their minds with a simple formula: Simple, Unexpected, Credible, Concrete, Emotional, Story (yep, it spells success). How to sound smart in your Tedx talk by Will Stephen swiral and hilarious Tedx talk shows the power of confidence, inflection, and empathy. Its the perfect example of presentation skills at work. Heres the gist of the presentation: gesticulate and use inflection to appear confident ask the audience questions tell an anecdote to connect with your audience use images and other media dress accordingly build intensity, then change the tone near the end connect the end of the speech to the beginning After social media marketing presentation Your offline

deck is just as important as your live presentation. Its always great to follow up after your live presentation. Remind them what it was about, include some highlights, and thank them for their time. This will not only help you stay in contact, but it can seriously increase your chances of hearing back from customers or potential clients. Done with your presentation? Engaging online or following up has several benefits. If youve given a social media presentation, follow up by sending thank-you notes or surveys. This will make sure your message stays fresh in peoples minds. Your focus should still be on offering value, not taking up someones time. Need some inspo? Here are six hand-picked examples

In the digital age, where attention spans are shrinking, creating an effective social media presentation is crucial for capturing and retaining any clients interest For example, when a business is looking for a social media manager (SMM) to boost their companys social media presence, they want to know what will be done before it is actually done: what results theyll get and what methods will be used to achieve them. Thats when a social media presentation comes in handy as the most attractive and informative way to introduce a business PowerPoint presentation. If you wonder how to present a social media strategy, consider the below tips to help guide your path forward. In todays article, well walk you through the essential steps to create an impactful social media strategy PPT for any platform that not only conveys your message effectively but also engages your client, so dive right in! How to create a social media strategy presentation? Before you design slides, you need to have text, images, or infographics to add. A social media strategy presentation must be related to content such as your social media strategy. Below, we share the steps that will help you craft an impactful social media marketing presentation for client they will never forget! Disclaimer: You should not limit yourself to just one slide, e.g., to show the target audience, and well now give you an approximate skeleton to follow. Set goals: Slide 1 Social media goalsTo present informative social media presentation slides, you should have a solid discussion with the client to discover their business goals and transform them into social media goals. It will impact further brand presentation and research on the target audience, competitors, and promotion methods. In such a presentation, your clients will expect clear and tangible metrics. For example, a shoe company wants to boost its sales using Instagram. In this case, you have to create goals of getting more conversions in sales, like increased clicks to the companys website. Your social media analytics presentation should depict how a specific promotion method on a specific platform will give specific numbers. Pro advice: Use Google Analytics for enhanced tracking and PowerPoint redesign services to create compelling diagrams. Research your audience. Slide 2 Target audience your task is understanding if desirable business goals match the typical buyer persona. If the client doesnt know their target audience, you should make recommendations but still try to discover the location, age occupation, or favorite game of the people they want to reach. The more criteria you know, the more targeted tone and voice you will be able to use to influence peoples choices. Research competitors: Slide 3 Competitors that definitely exist. And their SMM has already tried promotion strategies for you to learn from or avoid. Researching competitors is about thinking outside the box and analyzing their mistakes or successes. Your client should not be present on every platform, so do research and explore which ones will work best for their business. When looking at competitors, consider two main things:MARKET GAP (e.g., there is no podcast about house plant care). LEAD ENGAGEMENT (e.g., they get fantastic traffic from Instagram). Remember, researching competitors teaches you what to do and what not to do: posting frequency, type of content, followings of their followers, and more. Do social media audit: Slide 4 Social media analysis Any social media report presentation must summarize what the company is already doing. It may be an experienced business looking for a new strategy. If you create a social media channels for, and it may be an experienced business looking for a new strategy. If you create a social media strategy for an existing company, you have to audit its media to define baseline metrics: the number of followers, demographic data, average engagements, content performance, and other important analytics. If you create a social media strategy for a startup, you will have what to offer only after researching their personas and suitable social media. For example, the target audience is women aged 40 to 55 living in the suburbs, so you offer to go with Facebook. Set up the infrastructure: Slide 5 Content posting tools In the case of a new company, setting up the infrastructure means doing manually: Am I going to post things natively? How are we going to get the content calendars approved? Am I the only one to contact/answer the audience in DM/messaging? In the case of established companies, they will most probably onboard you on a tool they already use and assign a colleague for you to master it quickly. Make your next ppt a success Create a content calendar: Slide 6 Instagram/Facebook/TikTok content calendarThe last thing is putting together your content calendar and content into motion, which can be the hardest part. The last slides in the social media presentations ppt show an example of a post and calendar in tools like CoSchedule. For instance, you will post stories daily, behind-the-scenes images twice a week, and share product posts thrice weekly. Regardless of plenty of scheduling tools, we advise building a simple content calendar in Excel Spreadsheets to send directly to a client and get approval/feedback. 6 bonus tips for newbies Tip #1: Develop a compelling storyline Every effective presentation tells a story, and social media presentations are no exception. Craft a compelling narrative that takes your client on a journey, keeping them engaged from start to finish. Begin with a strong introduction, followed by a clear progression of ideas, and conclude with a memorable closing. Remember, a well-structured storyline can enhance the overall impact of your social media content strategy presentation. Tip #2: Design eye-catching visuals Visual elements play a crucial role in any presentation. Create visually appealing graphics, images, and videos that complement your content and are consistent with the brands aesthetics. Then, ensure they are optimized to maintain a professional and cohesive look across different devices. Pro advice: If design is not your cup of tea consider hiring a professional PowerPoint redesign company to create beautiful icons, diagrams, and other visuals for you. Tip #3: Incorporate engaging multimedia Diversify your content by incorporate engaging multimedia elements. Leverage the power of videos, GIFs, and interactive elements to captivate your client even more. Tip #4: Keep your social media presentation ppt conciseIn the fast-paced world of social media, conciseness is key, so keep your presentation focused on the essential points. Avoid overwhelming your client with excessive information. Instead, prioritize clarity and simplicity to ensure your message is easily digestible. Consider using bullet points, short sentences, and impactful visuals to convey your ideas efficiently. Tip #5: Leverage data and statistics Support your claims and statistics. Incorporation on social media strategy but also helps build trust with your client. However, be sure to attribute your sources to enhance credibility. Tip #6: Optimize for mobile With the increasing use of smartphones, optimizing your presentation on various devices to identify and address any formatting issues. A mobile-friendly presentation enhances accessibility and caters to the preferences of on-the-go clients. Summing upCreating an effective social media campaign presentation requires a thoughtful combination of understanding the tips outlined above, youll be well-equipped to craft presentations your client will most definitely appreciate. In case you need any help with social media slide design, dont hesitate to contact us for professional assistance. Our presentation for social media is essential when you want to show your team

Pair this new knowledge with our free social media presentation template, and youre ready to conquer the world. A social media presentation template, and youre ready to conquer the world. A social media presentation is a visual document that shows how social media presentation template, and youre ready to conquer the world. A social media presentation is a visual document that shows how social media can be used to achieve specific goals or objectives. It can be used to pitch an idea to a potential client, to show how social media can be used in a marketing campaign, or simply to educate others about the benefits of using social media presentation, consider the following: Who is your audience? Pick examples that will address your listeners specific pain points and make them nod in agreement. What are you trying to achieve? Have a clear goal in mind: are you pitching to land a new client or showcasing your quarterly results and ROI to non-social-media-savvy execs? What story do you want to tell? Use your storytelling skills by including the problem, the actions to solve it, the resolution, and the results; always end with a call to action. What is the hook? Hooking your audience early ensures you have their attention throughout. A good hook and withholding just enough information draws people in and intrigues them immediately. Think shocking statistics, rhetorical questions, growth stats, engagement metrics or mind-blowing KPIs. Where do you even start creating your presentation? Different environments and audiences require a different presentation should point out the advantages of personalized social media content and drive your main message home. Properly showcasing your work can help you make a good first impression on potential clients and build a stronger relationship with existing ones. With this in mind, lets tackle the topic of presenting your social media work to clients. The smart way: with the right social media marketing presentation. Ready, get set, read!Using eye-popping videos, pixel-perfect images, and engaging storytelling, social media marketing presentation. Ready, get set, read!Using eye-popping videos, pixel-perfect images, and engaging storytelling, social media platforms help brands increase awareness, connect with their potential customers, and boost sales. Gather data & insights for your presentation about social media presence, do a competitive analysis, understand the brands audience, and come up with content that is tailored to enough to know the clients past social media activity. Look into the companys values and overall website performance. Show them youre really interested in their business by making content suggestions that support and emphasize their core values. It might help if you have similar clients in your social media portfolio to prove your experience in that industry, but its not mandatory. A social media portfolio is a set of pieces of creative work that you can use to demonstrate your expertise as a social media expert. It can be anything from past posts to analytic reports. Dont be afraid to address both the brands strengths and weaknesses. If you are going to work with this client, their problems become your problems as well. Collaboration is one of the most common challenges in any business. The marketing department makes no exception. Create your social media presentation outline are going to work with this client, their problems as well. Collaboration is one of the most common challenges in any business.
basically the skeleton of your essay, and if youre going to have a good structure, then you need one. During the writing process, its key to make sure that your essay, and if youre going to have a good transition and
and appealing form for your audience. You want them to lap up your content, so dont skimp out on the creativity. The first step is to make a list of all the information. For example, the marketing specialist Darleen Schiavo, notes that the most effective way to present social media data, especially to non-marketing stakeholders, is through clear, concise bullet points. She explains: Tables and pie charts are pretty, but they all start to look the same to me, and my mind tends to wander. Presenting straightforward facts in bullet points, such as where youre performing well, where youre falling short, and what actions you can take, really speaks the language of stakeholders. Also, Darleen encourages to still include charts and tables, but keep in mind that readers are more likely to remember the key facts. Heres an idea of how you can structure your presentation in three broad sections. Use bullet points within each section to keep your content clear, concise, and easy to follow: Check out our top picks for Hootsuite alternatives in 2025 Decide where to host the social media presence, you understand the target audience, and youve come up with some brilliant content ideas. Hooray! Now its time to start thinking about the way you are going to showcase those social media slides to your client. Are you planning on sending a social media Powerpoint presentation with slides for each platform? Have you already asked your designer friend to create some mockups in Photoshop? Or maybe you still have those secret test pages where you preview what your posts are going to look like. Are you maybe trying to save a ton of time and going with a premade template from Pitchs proposal template solutions can work just fine up until the point when the client needs you to do a couple of changes.
Then, a couple more. Lets analyze 3 environments you could use to present your work and explore what each of them allows you to do:1. Planable social media collaboration tool with great UI/UXA dedicated social media collaboration tool with great UI/UXA dedicated social media management tool is the right choice. Yes, its obvious we think that. Its also true. Content calendar example in Planable Planable offers one place to create, collaborate, showcase, and approve social media content. We help you preview Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram, TikTok, Google My Business, Threads and YouTube posts Im outta breath with so many platforms we support exactly as they appear when published. We really offer one of the best marketing presentation formats you can think of. With Planable, you can visualize content by dragging and dropping posts in your predefined time slots. One calendar, one integrated social media marketing strategy presentation across multiple channels. Social media post editor in Planable Your work needs to be showcased in a visual way. Give your client a true representation of the end result. Dont let him see a link, 3 rows of text, and 4 images instead of a Facebook carousel post. Give Planable a try. That way, when the time comes to write your invoice letter and get paid for your hard work, your clients wont hesitate because they could see all the effort you put into making them happy! With Planable, teams can plan and create content for pretty much all the major channels out there. Were talking about: Showcase all that hard work described above to clients in all its beauty without relying on
pages and screenshot-laden PowerPoint presentations are messy. Enter mock-up pages. In Planable, you can create a custom page for any of the 9 supported platforms quickly and hassle-free. You dont even have to connect the actual page. If you dont have permission and dont want to ask the client just yet, you can still show them your work in
context. Heres how you do it:Go to Add pages in your workspaceSelect the relevant platformClick on Create a mockup pageWhile were at it, here are some of the details you can tweak to make your mockup pages as enticing and personalized to your clients wishes as humanly possible: Profile imageCover photoPage descriptionLocationUsernamePage
nameYour mock-up page is ready for feedback and collaboration! If you want to elevate your mockup page to the status of totally publishable content, simply connect it to a real account. You can find this option in your pages settings: 2. Powerpoint or Keynote best for primary social media presentation templates Social media PPT presentations or
or formats (single image/video/carousel/gif, etc.) Unfortunately, even if you go the extra mile and manage to create previews of the social media posts and add them to your presentation, these are often incomplete. Take the carousel, for example. Showing the rest of the cards would imply extra mockups or a separate email with links to Google Drive, where you would have a folder with all the images. 3. Google slides popular for standard templates designed for social media presentations. You can work on slides together with your team without any special software, and you can see what other people are doing at all times. Plus, every change made
will be saved automatically, so theres no need to worry about losing anything important. Google Slides predecessor, PowerPoint, has always been a complicated tool that makes it hard to create simple presentations. Not everyone understands Powerpoints options and what they mean at first glance, which leads many beginners into confusion when starting out. By comparison, Google Slides is much more intuitive and user-friendly. Since Google Slides is a web-based tool, you don't need to download any software, and you can start creating your slides from the get-go. You can easily embed videos (and other media you can think of), which makes it super convenient for social media managers
to allow the marketing team and client to see pixel-perfect content previews of the social media posts; Any format, whether its text, video, gif, link, photo, album, or carousel, should be easy to show; Your social media work should be rich in emojis, active hashtags, page tags, or gifs. Your client needs to be able to see them as they will appear live; It has
inevitable, so make sure to plan ahead. For instance, your solution should make it possible to give feedback right next to the posts, to add attachments to comments, resolve comments once feedback is implemented, and collaborate in real-time; Whatever solution you choose, make sure it improves your teams efficiency. No extra clicks, no need for extra communication channels to give and receive feedback. Everything should be automated & push notifications should be an exception. This is why Planable has the option to directly publish your postswithout manual work. We all know there are many things to do before delivering a presentation. You must be confident, practice in front of the mirror, organize your slides and devices, and take care of any last-minute changes. Before the social media presentation goes beyond last-minute adjustments. making your message stick is all in the details. Once you know what makes people remember things, its easy to formulate a coherent and compelling argument for them! Chip & Dan Heaths book does exactly that (and more). It helps you understand how to make your audience remember the core message of your presentation. How to formulate your vision so that it sticks in their minds with a simple formula: Simple, Unexpected, Credible, Concrete, Emotional, Story (yep, it spells success). How to sound smart in your Tedx talk by Will Stephen sviral and hilarious Tedx talk shows the power of confidence, inflection, and empathy. Its the perfect example of presentation skills at work. Heres
the gist of the presentation: gesticulate and use inflection to appear confident ask the audience questions tell an anecdote to connect with your audience use images and other media dress accordingly build intensity, then change the tone near the end of the speech to the beginning fresentation.
deck is just as important as your live presentation. Its always great to follow up after your live presentation. Remind them what it was about, include some highlights, and thank them for their time. This will not only help you stay in contact, but it can seriously increase your chances of hearing back from customers or potential clients. Done with your
